COMMUNITY foodbank
OF CENTRAL ALABAMA

2015 ANNUAL REPORT
OUR MISSION
The Community Food Bank of Central Alabama feeds people in need today and fosters collaborative solutions to end hunger tomorrow.
Dear Friends,

For nearly 33 years the Community Food Bank of Central Alabama has worked tirelessly to help families struggling with food insecurity. Despite these efforts, food insecurity continues to be a problem of immense magnitude across our service area. According to Feeding America’s Map the Meal Gap, hunger affects over 260,000 individuals, including nearly 80,000 children in Central Alabama. We know that only through equally immense collaborative efforts can we address this problem.

In 2015 our efforts resulted in a record distribution of 10 million meals to families in need and the equally important creation and strengthening of relationships with those in our community who are also working to eradicate poverty and its devastating consequences.

One of our key efforts began in early Fall 2015 with the launch of an extensive six-month community needs assessment to create a better picture of the need throughout our 12 county service area. During the qualitative phase of the assessment, numerous community partners provided input, resulting in both new and renewed relationships with local organizations. Also new in 2015, the food bank became the home of a SNAP Outreach Coordinator to further our efforts in fostering solutions for families in need.

As you will read in this annual report, the Community Food Bank of Central Alabama continues to work together with collaborative partners to broaden our horizons in order to meet the growing demand for food assistance in Central Alabama. On behalf of those that we serve, thank you for your compassionate support.

David Bell
Board of Directors, President
THE PROBLEM

Millions of hardworking Americans do not know where their next meal will come from. For the nearly quarter million food insecure individuals residing in the Community Food Bank of Central Alabama’s 12 county service area, putting food on the table every day is a struggle and often means making impossible choices. For many of these families it means choosing between paying for household or medical expenses and food for their children when money is tight.

The true face of hunger is a mother working two jobs, seniors on fixed incomes, children struggling to learn on an empty stomach, a father skipping a meal so his children can eat. Hunger is not a problem that we can easily see, perhaps because its stigma causes people to hide their need.

Research, however, shows that many hardworking Americans are increasingly relying on food pantries as a part of their long-term strategy to put food on the table. For 33 years we have led community efforts to provide food to these struggling families in central Alabama.

GROCERY STORE DONATIONS ON THE RISE

Five days a week our fleet of refrigerated trucks picks up food donations from nearly 130 local grocery stores and restaurants. The program saves millions of meals from going to waste in landfills and instead feeds our region’s most vulnerable residents.

It is estimated that more than 800 million pounds of wholesome food is discarded from grocery stores in the United States each year. The Community Food Bank of Central Alabama partners with local grocery stores to prevent these fruits, vegetables, meats, and dry goods from being needlessly discarded so we can feed thousands of families in need in Central Alabama.

We work closely with grocery stores to teach them how to donate close-to-code food that is no longer shelf-worthy but still wholesome. The Food Bank trucks pick up these food donations five days a week. We then inspect and sort the donations to ensure it is safe to distribute.

Thanks to our Food Sourcing Team, we established new relationships with several Sprouts Farmer’s Markets, Trader Joe’s, and over 30 Little Caesars Restaurants. After the most productive year in the history of the Retail Donation Program, we are committed to sustaining this growth.

This year the Food Bank and our grocery store partners saved more than 5.6 million pounds of food from going to waste. Instead these wholesome foods provided over 4.5 million meals to feed neighbors at risk of hunger across Central Alabama.
In December 2014, the Community Food Bank Alabama received a competitive Feeding America grant for a two-year Child Hunger Corps placement. Child Hunger Corps is Feeding America’s national service program designed to grow food banks’ child hunger programming capacity and ultimately increase the number of meals served to food-insecure children. Arriving in August 2015, our Child Hunger Corps Member, Aoife Dowd, began a six-month community needs assessment to identify gaps and unmet needs in our 12-county service area. The assessment’s results indicated Blount, St. Clair and Cherokee as priority counties for current child hunger relief efforts. In Fall 2016 we will launch a new program, Weekenders Family Market, in partnership with schools in these priority counties. The needs-based program will serve children and their families at schools across Blount and St. Clair counties. Dowd’s Child Hunger Corps term will culminate in August 2017 with an extensive program evaluation.

Hailing from Mill Rift, PA, Aoife Dowd is a graduate of American University in Washington, D.C., where she received a B.A. in Public Health. During her time at American, Dowd spent a semester abroad in Khon Kaen, Thailand working to eliminate health disparities in local communities. Dowd’s interest in hunger issues stems from her work with the D.C. homeless community at Thrive D.C. and her work as an intern with Feeding America’s policy branch. Dowd’s local, national, and international experiences with poverty and hunger piqued her interest in addressing these issues through food banking. Excited about her work thus far at the CFBCA, Dowd is determined to meet the challenge of supporting hungry families and communities in need.
SNAP OUTREACH

The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), formerly known as Food Stamps, is the safety net of nutrition in America. Our SNAP Outreach Program works with community organizations and volunteers to reach households struggling with hunger who qualify for SNAP but face barriers to beginning the application process. Improving SNAP participation among eligible families allows food bank agencies and community organizations to direct more resources to food insecure households that are just above the SNAP qualification threshold. SNAP Outreach staff coordinate services at local organizations with clients needing food assistance, providing general SNAP information, as well as in-person assistance with the application process.

In October 2015, Adrian Kirkland joined the Community Food Bank as the SNAP Outreach Coordinator for our 12-county service area. The SNAP Outreach Program uses a variety of avenues for outreach, including health fairs, agency food distributions, direct mail initiatives, and mobile pantries.

In 2015 the Program held over 115 events throughout our 12 counties, collecting 318 applications for a yield of 263,976 meals to food insecure individuals.
PROGRESS IN PROGRAMS

weekenders+

CHILD HUNGER PROGRAMS

No child should experience hunger

Our Weekenders+ programs relieve child hunger through 2 models: weekly backpack distributions and Family Market, the school-based pantry concept.

We provide weekend meal kits to children who depend upon school meals and may go without when school is closed. The meal kits ensure children arrive to school Monday morning ready to learn without the distraction of hunger. In 2016, we will expand this program and host full-scale food distributions at partner schools. This expanded model, called Weekenders Family Market, will enable us to make healthy food choices like fresh produce available to a child’s entire family including his or her siblings who are also at risk of hunger.

This allows us to tailor our approach based on the specific needs and resources of each school.
